THE ERUPTION OF TACANA

Deadly Volcano Blots out Over One Thousand Lives.

San Francisco, June 7.—Upward of 1,000 lives have been lost and half of the city of Tacana, Guatemala, has been destroyed by the eruption of Tacana volcano, according to advices received here today by the Chilean steamer Palena, from Valparaiso and way ports. Tacana lies several miles back from Champerico, on the coast, and it was at that city that the news of the disaster was seen.

Earthquakes, it was said, had continued at short intervals every day since the great disturbance of April 18, when the city of Quetzaltenango was destroyed.

The shocks have been of sufficient strength to keep the residents of the entire region in a state of terror and little has been done to repair the damage done by them and the volcanic eruptions. Punctured stones and ashes thrown from the crater of Tacana have spread a thin coating over the territory surrounding the city.

A few days before the Palena left Champerico an earthquake destroyed a small town near Guatemala City, but its name was not learned.

Beats the Signatures of Charges not Proved.

Indianapolis, June 9.—The report of the recent proceeding into the conduct of affairs at the Michigan City Prison was made public today when the Secretary of the State Board of Charities filed the findings of the Board with the Governor. The Board, in substance, declared that the allegations of ex-Prison Physician Horne were not proved, but nevertheless the Board reports that many of the conditions at the prison are shameful, disgraceful and brutal. The disgrace refers to the treatment of inmate prisoners. It was found also that spoiled meat had been served at least once to the prisoners. Sick and insane prisoners had, upon one or two occasions, been brutally punished and profane language has been employed by the guards and deputy wardens.

AN OVATION.

Hon. R. W. Slack's Beautiful Tribute to our Soldier Dead.

Delivered at the Decoration Services at the Owensboro Cemetery, May the 30th.

Following a custom hallowed by time, we are here today "filled with sweet and precious memories," of our dead heroes, to encircle their immortal hiwa with garlands, and deck their graves with the loveliest flowers of spring, watered with tears of love and of sorrow.

It has been said that great names and great deeds never perish, and I believe no greater names have ever, or will ever, in all the future ages adorn the pages of history, than those of the great chieftains, upon both sides, in our civil war.

The Grand Army of the Republic—the child—the creature—of a war of principles, and not of conquest, accomplished more, in behalf of liberty and humanity, than had been accomplished by all the other armies of all the world from the beginning of time, and its heroic deeds will live forever in the memory of all future generations.

It is well for us, occasionally, in these later years, when the clouds of passion have been dispelled, to revert to the cause of a war, between brothers of the same country, and see if we cannot justify them both, giving each one his due meed of praise, and obliterate from memory's tablets, all recollections of the unfortunate bitterness that once filled men's souls.

The conflict in which they engaged was inevitable. The people of the North and the people of the South, while composing one great nation, were drifting as far apart as the poles. The people of the South were wedded to a system which was theirs by inheritance, and the people of the North to others, which was theirs by inheritance.

Each system was diametrically opposed to the other. The people on both sides conscientiously believed as God gave them the power of discernment, to see the right in the justice of their cause, but a nation thus divided against itself could not live.

No civil court could decide, and thus settle, the momentous questions involved, and we were left, and drifted almost of our own volition, into, the court of last resort, from which there is no appeal, the arbitrament of the sword.

Patrons and statesmen on both sides, seeing the awful consequence of the coming storm, and fearing the wreck and ruin that must follow in its wake, lifted up their voices to stay its coming. The age of Ashland, who had retired to private life to spend his declining years, once more entered that great forum of the world, the senate of the United States, and standing in his place in a speech, which the historian tells us, "for power, pathos and patriotic sentiment, has seldom, if ever been excelled," he said:

"I implore gentlemen, I adjure them whether for the South or the North by all they hold dear in this world—by all their love of liberty—by all their veneration for their ancestors—by all their gratitude to Him who has bestowed on them such unnumbered and countless blessings—by all the duties which they owe to themselves, to pause, solemnly to pause at the edge of the precipice, before the sword."

12 Minutes for Lunch.

That is the average time spent in a large city restaurant by three thousand lunchers. It takes three hours to digest a fresh egg and soft-boiled beef. In fact, three hours is about the time required to digest the average twelve minute lunch. The object of the busy lunch is to let the busy man get back to his office work. But when the brain is active, the stomach is inactive for lack of necessary blood. The natural consequence is indigestion, and indigestion opens the door to many diseases.

Indigestion is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

"It is with heartfelt gratitude that I send this testimonial which will do you to publish with my name and address," writes Mr. W. L. Seaman, of Washington, D. C. "I had stomach trouble from childhood and suffered with it more or less as I grew up. At the age of 25 I was looking down my throat. My suffering was terrible. Could not eat without distress. Could only eat a few certain things and was not able to work half the time. Every thing I tried only gave me temporary relief. I finally got a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and in two weeks I was able to eat anything I pleased. Several months have passed and I am now the healthiest man I ever was. I am 37 years old and I feel like I have never been well."

Free. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser in paper covers is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expenses of mailing only, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. W. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

fatal and dangerous leap is taken into the yawning abyss below, from which none who ever take shall return in safety."

It might well occur to us at this late day, that in view of the inevitable and awful consequences of a fraternal war, and such warnings as these, the people should have taken heed, that there should have been enough patriotism in an enlightened nation like ours, to have averted the danger but in my humble opinion, the storm gained such velocity that nothing but the hand of God could have stayed its coming.

After that utterance, as for years before it, crimination and recrimination followed in rapid and increasing succession until it seemed, to each alike, there was no further virtue in forbearance.

Ten years later when all that was mortal of Henry Clay had been consigned to the silent tomb, upon the eve of "the parting of the ways," just before the first shot was fired, and the death knell to peace was sounded, another statesman, standing in the same forum, in all the bitterness of his soul, said:

"The original ideas of the constitution have faded from men's minds. We are at the end of the insane revel of partisan license, which for thirty years has in the United States worn the mask of government. We are about to close the masquerade by the dance of death."

That language expressed alike the feelings of the people of the South and of the North.

We, who were living then are now living witnesses of what following in the wake of that awful announcement of the "dance of death," and the fulfillment of the prophetic words of Clay.

For four years passion held full sway, and the carnage of death filled the land with mourning, the nation had the chance of the dream, when almost of a sudden, there was a rift in the clouds, and we beheld written upon the skies the holy words, "peace, sweet peace." Instantly the land was filled with joy, supplanting sorrow. Bonfires lighted the hill tops and the valleys and one grand hosanna of joy ascended to the throne of God, from the throats of his people.

The soldiers of the Grand Army of the Republic and the soldiers of the Grand Army of the Confederacy, weary and worn, and sick and tired of the carnage, as brother to brother—as one American citizen and soldier to another met each other half way, shook hands across the bloody chasm, and it closed.

That silent, matchless chieftain, Ulysses S. Grant, said, "let us have peace," and there was peace.

Since then the march of progress has been resumed as though never broken.

The ex-Federal and ex-Confederate sit side by side in the same old hall of congress occupied by our fathers.

The old Federal generals, Shafter, Lawton and Chaffee, and the old Confederate generals, Lee and Wheeler, in command of the sons of the old Confederate and Federal soldiers accompanied by the rough rider from the North, in command of a regiment composed of one half New York Yankees and the other half the Rough Riders of Texas, whose fathers wore the blue and the gray, marched up San Juan hill, in solid, unbroken columns, under the same old flag that our fathers carried with bare and bloody feet across the frozen ground at Valley Forge, to glorious victory in behalf of liberty, sweet liberty.

To-day you invite the old Confederate soldiers to join with you in paying honor and tribute to your dead comrades, his former foes. Keeping your hands clasped over the bloody chasm he invites you on the morrow to join him, in a neighboring city, to pay honor and tribute to his dead comrades, your former foes.

Has the world ever witnessed such a spectacle as this?

A victory won without a conqueror or the conquered.

Men but little note or reckon the ulterior results of what they do. Can it be possible that Columbus, when he was begging in tatters and rags before the throne of the kings of the world, for a pittance to enable him to sight the unseen land across the seas, and to plant the cross in the wilderness of the unknown savage, had any conception of the thought that he was sowing the seeds of a government that will supplant the monarchies of the old world in which he had implicit faith and to which he gave loyal allegiance?

Did our fathers, when they declared their independence of their mother country, and announced the doctrine that all men are created equal, and that the only just power of government is derived from the consent of the governed—realize the possibility that they were thus proclaiming a doctrine that will permit the whole world and obliterate the throne, once believed to be of divine origin?

Did the soldiers of the Grand Army of the Republic, when sleeping with no bed but the earth, no shelter but the skies and no light but the stars, ever dream that in preserving this nation they were carrying out the destiny of God—when He guided the bark of Columbus across the ocean and inspired the declaration of independence, penned by our fathers—it at coming time all of His people, in all the nations of the world may be governed under its benign influence?

Go ask the legions of the Grand Armies in that unknown world, the answer from your own comrades will be wafted back on the breath of an angel. "Yes," Yes, in the spirit of the immortal souls, they did. And they were guided by the same star that was the guide of the wise men to the Babe in the stable at Bethlehem, who had come that all men might be equal before the throne of God.

A few more years, and one-half of a century will stand between us and the event of our civil war. The feelings, which it engendered should live as still in our memories as all that is mortal, of its brave soldiers who lie in their graves. Beneath the green mounds on yonder hill are the ashes of some brave spirits, who wore the gray and with undying devotion followed the fortunes of their lost cause until its banner was furled in honorable defeat. Seek them out on this, the "National Easter" day, and with willing hands and loving hearts strew your most beautiful flowers and drop a silent tear upon their last resting place. The recording angel, with his wand will blot out the past that should be forgotten.

"Under the sod and the dew Waiting the judgment day,
Under the roses of the blue
Under the hills the gray."

The terms by which the war in South Africa is ended are creditable to both sides. England assumes the entire cost, not only pledging itself to levy a war tax on the Transvaal, but agreeing to allow the Boer combatants $15,000,000 to restore their farms. While the Boers give up the arms and munitions they have in the field, they are permitted to keep rifles in their homes for protection. Prisoners will be returned at the cost of the British government, and none will be punished unless for violation of the rules of war. The main concession of the Boers is the recognition of the sovereignty of King Edward. They are promised self-government, under this limitation, as soon as it is practicable. The colonial rebels will at least not be visited with capital punishment. These terms are the best the Boers could reasonably expect, and they are wise not to prolong a war that, in spite of temporary successes, would lead to their own extermination.

In many instances attacks of cholera morbus terminate fatally before medicine can be procured or a physician summoned. The safe way is to keep at hand a reliable medicine for use in such cases. For this purpose there is nothing so sure as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. W. E. Bosworth, of Lafayette, Ala., says: "In June, 1900, I had a serious attack of cholera morbus and one dose of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy gave me relief in fifteen minutes." Quick Marriages.

The Cincinnati Times in commenting on the fact that a Tennessee man buried his wife one day and married the cook the next, says that it knows of the Kentucky minister who proposed to his deceased wife's sister on the way home from the funeral, and they were married within three weeks after the wife's death. The Democrat knows of a man in Bracken county some years ago who proposed to a girl the night they were sitting up with the corpse of his wife, and they married within a week. Heaven evidently blessed the union for they are in affluent circumstances, have eight bright faced happy children, and are now living on one of the best farms in Bracken.—Winchester Democrat.

How to Avoid Trouble.

Now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the summer is over, and it procured now may save you a trip to town in the night or in your busiest season. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful medicine in use for bowel complaints, both for children and adults. No family can afford to be without it. For sale by all druggists.

BILLY SUNDAY

DOES NOT MINCE WORDS.

Denominates Dancing and Card Playing Devices of the Devil.

The Gambler of To-day. He Says, is Born at Home.

Progressive Eucbre Banned by Plain Spoken Preacher.

"A person cannot wait to heaven, neither can he two-step there," said Evangelist W. A. Sunday to a large audience in the Methodist church at Wheaton, Ill., recently.

"The spirit of gambling is engendered in the children to day by their eucbre-playing mothers.

"The dance exists on purely a basis of passion. Dancing is nothing but a secondary love feast set to music. It originated in a Paris brothel. If the young people are bound to go to the ballroom they should take their partner, the devil, and pass on to their passion pleasure without dragging him through the church. Most men dance for the hug and not for the sake of the dance.

"The religion that is most pleasing to the men of to-day is the one which is regulated to suit their worldly fancies.

"Cards were invented to satisfy the whims of an idiotic king, and they have since been the means of unbalancing the minds of hundreds of thousands of unfortunates.

"Nine-tenths of the gamblers were taught to play cards in professedly christian homes when they were boys. Card parties make full-fledged gamblers just as sure as a grist mill turns out flour. I want to say right here that the so-called christian homes where card-playing is tolerated are actually the kindergartens of the gamblers' hell.

"I have just as much respect for a gambler who will sit in a joint at 3 o'clock in the morning and huck a jackpot, as I have for the people who parade under the garb of respectability at cinque and eucbre parties in the parlors of the homes of our cities each day.

"Some people will be shocked at what I say. I only speak the truth. They wondered where all the gamblers come from. I repeat that they emanate from your homes, where they begin by looking at the picture cards in their infancy.

"The saloon men and gamblers chuckle when they read in the daily newspapers accounts of eucbre or progressive whist parties where prizes are offered. They know full well that the game really is progressive and become their patrons."

As To "DANCING CHRISTIANS."

"A dancing Christian is never a spiritual Christian, never. The lowest down rascal in the community is a dancing Methodist. It does not take long to cut the corners off the square dance and make it a round dance.

The young man who has dancing sweethearts really loves, and is familiar with the dance, is the first to condemn it.

"When polygamy became illegal and unconstitutional, the Mormon church, which alone previously had taken an stand against dancing, changed. This is a little something to take over. In spite of our boasted christian civilization, even a heathen when entering a ballroom for the first time, has been known to cover his face to hide his sense of shame and to exclaim: 'I have never seen anything equal to this since I was weaned.'

"Men do not choose to dance with themselves, not even with their own wives and sisters. Beyond the thrill of music and the poetry of motion, it seems to have a sex reference."

George Schaub, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio, is a constant reader of the Dayton Volks-Zeitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain-Expeller advertised therein for laze back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the Pain Expeller a few days my wife said to me, 'I feel as though I were new,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale by all druggists.

GIVES AWAY NICKELS

Method Adopted by a Storekeeper to Attract the Notice of Buyers.

A shopkeeper in this year calling the attention of customers and those he desires as such to his wares by a novel method. The person to whom it is addressed receives a well filled envelope, with no external markings to indicate its contents, but up in the left hand corner of the envelope are printed the words: "The five cents is inside."

The appearance of the envelope, together with the notice, is calculated to induce curiosity at once. The statement that the five cents is inside is true, for on opening the letter a bright new nickel of 1902 date is found tucked away between the middle pages of a pamphlet.

The explanation given in the pamphlet is that the sender is not a stealer of other people's time, and that it was calculated that the recipient would use up five cents' worth of his own time in reading the shopkeeper's story, the latter had decided to be honest and pay for the time used or "purchased," as he puts it, and he therefore included a nickel in payment.

Whether the method pays the shopkeeper, is not yet a settled question.—New York Sun.

PAYS FOR THE PRIVILEGE.

New Orleans Sailor Enjoys $15 Worth of Profanity.

Fifteen dollars a month for the privilege of swearing is a pretty good price to pay for it, and yet this is what a man of my acquaintance did, and there is a rather singular story connected with the fact says a writer in the New Orleans Times-Democrat in the upper portion of the Sixth district there is an old seafaring man who has a penchant for using bad language. He is at this time engaged in a portfolio business and ordinarily would pass current as a good fellow, when he is in the city he is at home and he manages to keep loaded all the time. When he is at work he does not drink and is noted for attending strictly to his own business.

There is a cottage next door to where he lives, but the owner has experienced trouble in getting a tenant who would remain for any length of time in the house. This has been true for the reason that as soon as the old seafaring man would return home for a short stay he begins to use such foul language that the next-door neighbor, in the cottage, cannot stand it, and he simply moves out. Some time ago the owner, who was very much annoyed by the condition, sought legal advice. He was told that the only thing he could do was to make the swearing man pay him the amount the cottage rented for. He was getting $15 a month for it. He would simply have to make the swearer pay this amount as damage for driving his tenants away.

The swearer evidently thought the proposition was a good one, for he accepted it and is paying the money like a man. But the indications are that he will quit paying this amount when the month is up, exactly here is the point of the story. There is a minister of the gospel who resides in the rear. He wrote to the man who uses bad language and asked him to desist, and told him that if he did not he would at once take steps to make him bridle his tongue and quit swearing. As soon as the swearing man got the note he walked out into the back yard of his home and began to deliver an address which cannot be produced in polite type. The preacher was horrified.

Then he walked back into the house and went to the bathroom. He slipped, fell and broke a leg in two places near the ankle. He has been in bed since that time, and the pretty part of the story is the fact that his good wife whom he had often abused in unmentionable language, is constantly by his side, and he will allow no other person to attend to his wants. And, strangely enough, he has not sworn an oath since he cursed the preacher and broke his leg. I suppose he will not be paying $15 a month for the privilege of swearing after this.

THE NEW WOMAN.

Miss Alice Cohn, writes from 474 Eleventh Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., as follows:

"Having had poor health for a great many months and now having it restored makes me feel very grateful to Peruna. I suffered a great deal during my monthly periods, had severe pains, and was generally depressed, but can truthfully say that a few bottles of Peruna has removed all pain and made a new woman of me.—MISS ALICE COHN.

The coming of what is known as the "new woman" in our country is not greeted by everyone as it should be a great blessing. But there is another new woman whom everybody is glad to see. Every day some invalid woman is proclaiming, "I have been made a new woman by Dr. Hartman's bona treatment." It is only necessary to send name, address, symptoms, duration of sickness and treatment already received to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O., and directions for one month's treatment will be promptly forwarded. The medicine can be obtained at the nearest drug store.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

For Appellate Judge.

We are authorized to announce J. W. Pike, of Hartford, as a candidate for re-election to the office of Judge of the Appellate Court in the Second Judicial District, subject to the action of the Republican party.

For Circuit Judge.

We are authorized to announce W. T. Owen, of Hartford, as a candidate for re-election to the office of Judge of the Circuit Court in the Second Judicial District, subject to the action of the Republican party.

Hanna stock is still at the head of the list of Presidential securities. It went up ten points after the Ohio State Convention.

The era of great men in the United States may not be past, but certainly the era of asses is on—Carmack and Tillman are up there.

It is about time Republicans were interesting themselves about the selection of county and district officers to be elected next year.

When the city wind mill falls and crushes out a few lives it will make an interesting news item, but at the price of orphan's tears and widows' heartaches.

SENATOR Quay has won another victory over the Wanamaker forces in the nomination of Peenypacker.
We hope to see a reformation in Pennsylvania politics after Quay dies.

A few Democratic newspapers are continually referring to Mr. Bryan as the man who led six millions of voters. Would it not be also suggestive to refer to him as the leader who was defeated by more than one million of voters?

We are pleased at the interest the teachers and others are taking in our voting contest. The watch and buggy we are giving away are well worth a contest, and they are going to be won by the teachers going out and working for them.

The King and Queen of England have accepted an invitation to dine with American Ambassador Choate, the first time in many centuries, a British King has dined with a foreign ambassador. But, perhaps, this is the first chance for some time that a British Sovereign has had to dine on American Choate.

WHAT is the matter with Augustus E. Wilson for the Republican nomination for Governor? Gus Wilson is a great lawyer and orator, and has many qualities which fit him for popular leadership, and besides he has not indulged in the family bloodletting which has been so disastrous to Kentucky Republicanism for the past few years.

DR. A. D. JAMES writes us that he has secured a rate of one and one-third fare from all points in the district to the Judicial Convention at Leitchfield, June 25. Every Republican in the district who is interested in the success of the Republican ticket this fall, should attend this convention.

The forthcoming coronation of Britain's King will be the most gorgeous affair of its kind witnessed in Europe for centuries. It will be attended by all the show, ceremony and pageantry of the palmier days of Royalty. But it is the caprice of King Edward, not the taste of his subjects, that will bring it about.

An Illinois divine preached Sunday from the text: "It is harder for a camel to go through the eye of a needle," etc., and the very next day his most prosperous and most past-paying parish bought a local newspaper. The divine repented his choice of a text, but the once prosperous young business man was already an editor.

Nothing grieves the editor of a local newspaper more than his inability to devote more space to death notices.
Almost weekly we have letters from the friends of some beloved dead, which we are unable to publish because of their great length, or perhaps because the death has been already reported. Columns of well written memorials would be very interesting to the family and immediate friends of the dead, but not so to the general public. The death of a person not well known interests few people beyond the immediate neighborhood in which it occurs. Standing by the grave of one we love, we can not well understand why the world does not weep with us, but it does not. However, we shall cheerfully give space to brief well written death notices, if sent in within a week or two after the death of the person written of.

Carried in a Cage.

An old Confederate soldier, sorely stricken in mind and body, was carried through the lower part of this county

Friday evening, ended like a wild ani- mal.

The name of the hapless prisoner is J. W. Pike. He hails from Ohio county. He was penned in a big wooden cage, securely fastened upon the top of a "double-decker" moving wagon which was occupied by his wife and six children. The outfit is much like those used by hucksters to collect poultry, excepting that the pen had stout wooden slats to insure the safe confinement of the captive.

The melancholy little caravan arrived at Mayfield Saturday and will remain there to-day. Pike received a wound in the civil war, through the head, which renders him liable to violent fits. Seven years ago he went blind.

Last January Mrs. Pike decided to move to the Choctaw nation with her children. The family started overland. In order to convey the afflicted husband and father safely it was necessary to keep him locked in the cage, which she had built. Otherwise in one of his attacks, he would probably do himself or some other serious injury.

The family has now been on the road for six months. They will reach the Indian territory in the fall.

Mrs. Pike was Miss Effie Choate, of Christian county. She has several brothers living in Graves county.

The imprisoned veteran served with credit in one of the Kentucky regiments on the Southern side. He was born and raised in Ohio county.—Paducah News-Democrat.

The editor of THE REPUBLICAN has been very kind to ask that this correspondent, who was a member of the party, who went to the Mammoth Cave recently, to write an account of the trip, experiences, etc., for his paper, and which was intended we should attempt for this week's publication; however, time has slipped by and we do not find our manuscript assuming creditable shape; consequently we are unable to give you this visionary journey through the cave, with this correspondent as guide, in this week's paper. Altho' we may be able to do so at some other

Handed Girl a Note.

Henderson, Ky., June 11.—It is the relatives of a young woman in this city could get their hands on a young negro, Clarence Cheatham, he no doubt would fare badly. On Tuesday, June 3, the negro walked into Mason's candy kitchen, where the young woman is employed, and handed her a note, saying he would soon return for an answer. The girl supposed it was from some of her friends. When she read it she was frightened at its impudence and sheer audacity. She immediately turned it over to her brother, who at once instituted search for the negro. Failing to find him, the brother finally reported the mat- ter to the police, who soon learned that the negro had left the city.

Soon after leaving the note the negro returned for an answer. The young woman was alone in the store.
The negro told her that he had come for his answer. She was frightened, but told him she had given the note to her mother, who would answer it.
Turning away, the negro told the girl that she had his life in her hands. He never returned for an answer.

Flossie Washette McKinney was born July 11, 1888, in Warwick county, Ind., died June 6, 1902, age thirty-four years, ten months and twenty-four days. She was a loving, obedient daughter and loved her mamma and brother very devotedly, and always tried to relieve her mamma of every duty that she could. She was a patient sufferer and left strong evidence that she was gone to be with Jesus and the angels. Mother desires that all her school mates, the pallbearers, and all who love her, meet dear Flossie in heaven. A FRIEND.

Why "Gravy" Held His Job.

Messrs. Welsh & Marks are contractors for the masonry of Mr. John C. Riley's new business house.

"Gravy" is a colored mortar mixer and hod carrier, Messrs. Welsh & Marks brought over from Owensboro.

"Gravy" does twice the work and four times the talking of any other colored laborer on the job. Hartford whisky aids "Gravy's" digestion, and on Sundays he makes up his lack of exercise with additional whisky.

Monday morning "Gravy's" digestion was away above the normal, and in order to keep it there he multiplied his drunks numerically and quan-tatively with the result that Messrs.
Welsh & Marks discharged him.

"Gravy" said he was going back to Owensboro, but he didn't go, and here's the point we've been driving home. In the reason why "Gravy" did not leave while this building was in process of erection, there is a lesson for every young man in the country, and some older ones as well. The reason Messrs. Welsh & Marks did not let "Gravy" leave, was that he did his work better than anybody else they could get to do.

The man who gives better service than anybody else can give to the individual, company or corporation for which he works will never hunt for a job. It is the man who makes his services indispensable who never lays awake of nights through fear of losing his place. This simple negro, to whom his employers could form no very strong personal attachment, has made his services indispensable, and after a little merited chastisement, goes back to his wage. This simple anecdote of a simple negro carries a lesson by which many of us might profit.

Card of Thanks.

I desire through the columns of your valuable paper, to thank the friends, who were so very kind to me and my family, during the sickness of my daughter, Flossie. Words are feeble to express my thankfulness, but I pray God's blessing upon them and shall ever remember them and their kindness.

MRS. LAURA MCKINNEY.

Hanged to a Tree.

Sallabury, N. C., June 11.—A mob of about fifty masked men broke into the jail at 1 o'clock this morning, and took Harris and James Gillespie, negro boys, to the outskirts of the city, and hanged them to a tree.
Their bodies were then riddled with bullets.

The negroes were charged with the murder of Miss Corrella Benson in Rowan county Monday. Sheriff Julian summoned a number of extra deputies in the jail, but they were not able to withstand the mob.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear.

There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

day night and took out a velocipede for the purpose of going to Rander for booze. X-Ray Machine.

Messrs. C. P. Nowlin, Addis Pate, Dr. L. B. Bean, the editor of The Herald and the editor of this paper, are indebted to Dr. R. W. Ford for a special exhibition, Monday night, of the mysteries of his new X-ray machine. This machine, it not the most useful, in at least, the most wonderful of the electrical inventions. The electricity for the operation of this machine is developed by a number of rotating glass discs, which set the molecules of the air in the closed box, in motion and the molecular friction develops the electricity which is conveyed to the Crook's tube by conductors. The Crook's tube is an oblong glass spheroid containing a vacuum, which when charged, gives off a pale greenish, yellow light, called the X-ray. This unknown light is so called because "X" represents an unknown quantity. The X-ray light, with reference to the air, is of very low illuminating power, but it pierces solids with magical effect.

A pocket-book exposed to the X-ray light, shows the silver, nickel or copper coins, with remarkable accuracy, and the outlines of an ordinary door key were plainly visible through two books aggregating three inches in thickness. The hand or foot, when viewed through the fluoroscope, shows only the bony structure. Viewing the skeleton of a living being is a gruesome spectacle, but a truly wonderful sight.

But the most remarkable and fascinating action that it has ever been our privilege to witness, was to look into a human body, illuminated by this unknown light, and see the heart rise and fall in its ceaseless labor of sustaining life.

Aide from its X-ray attachments, the static machine is coming into favor for the electrical treatment of nervous disorders, and rheumatic troubles.
